Death of a Little Child.

On Saturday morning last, the infant child of our beloved young friends, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Doby, was laid to everlasting rest in our village cemetery. This dear little child was an only one, and therefore, an unspeakable loss to its fond parents. What is worse for them, however, is bliss for the child. When we look around and see the evil ways of men, it is a blessed thought that we have children in Heaven and not on earth.

Death of James E. Cook.

On Wednesday, the 3rd instant, as our last issue was being printed, Mr. James E. Cook, of Graniteville, while in Augusta, was stricken with paralysis, and after lying for an hour or two, prostrate and speechless, in the Globe Hotel, died at 1 o'clock p. m. James E. Cook was an Edgfield man, a native of the Mountain Creek section. From his earliest manhood, however, he had lived in Graniteville, where he acquired a fortune, and a name that was a synonym for piety, honor, honesty, enterprise, public spirit, and benevolence. Indeed, throughout his life, James E. Cook was such a man as we are delighted to write down as a native of Edgfield. We knew him well; and in our life we have known no better man. We hope—and we believe—that his soul is with God.

Death of Mrs. Emily Dora.

This widely-known and widely-beloved lady, the wife of Capt. James Dora, of Webster County, Ga., and the mother of our honored townsman, Mrs. D. Parker, died, at her home, on Sunday morning last, after a lingering illness of several months, aged, we think, about seventy years. Mrs. Dora was Miss Dean, of Sleepy Creek, an elder sister of Messrs. Aaron, Marion and Rufus Dean. Until twenty years back—when her husband, comparatively broken up by the vicissitudes of the war—removed to Georgia—of course she had lived all her life in her native section, where she was ever noted for piety, benevolence and very unusual purity of tone. Three of her children are still living in Edgfield. To these—two aged and bereaved husbands—and to her troops of devoted relatives in many parts of our County—we beg leave to offer our most genuine sympathy, in this their sad and grievous bereavement.

For the Advertiser.

Question Again.
We see that the editor of the Monitor clings to what he said as regards the top of the wheel's moving one hundred and fifty times faster than the bottom, and calls our attention to the fact that the bottom of the wheel is the centre of motion, which fact we fail to recognize, and must insist that the centre of wheel is centre of motion. To prove that we are correct, we bring before him a wheel of twelve spokes; number the top spoke 1, next 2, next 3, and so on till we reach the twelfth one. We will begin with No. 1 at the top, which will throw No. 7 at the bottom; now turn the wheel just one spoke and we will find No. 2 at the top and No. 8 at the bottom; turn it one more spoke, two more, or three more, and we will find No. 1 always directly opposite No. 7; No. 2 opposite No. 8; No. 3 opposite No. 9, and so on, proving that the bottom keeps exact pace with the top. We agree with the Abbeville Press and Banner in saying that "the top goes forward while the bottom does not," since while the top is going down, the bottom is coming up; but still every portion of a wheel at the same circumference moves alike. We hope we have made ourselves clear to our friend of the Monitor.

Gratifying Result.

The entertainment of the Episcopal ladies at Mrs. Wiggall's, on Friday evening last, netted for these ladies the sum of seventy dollars, which, for so small a community and such hard times, was a very gratifying result.

The pouring of rain and the cutting of grain have set in simultaneously. The whole country is busy in reaping. We trust the rains may not continue long enough to injure the grain that is already down. There is none to lose—none to spare.

Mad Dogs in Edgfield.

Considerable excitement was occasioned by a mad dog at Coleman's Cross Roads, Edgfield County, last Thursday. Mr. Jack Coleman owned a pack of eight or ten fox hounds; one of them went mad and bit the others, and also a fine mule worth $150. Mr. Coleman had his bounds killed, and he has the mule penned up awaiting results. —Newberry Observer.

The Desk Entertainment.

Do not forget the Hop at the Academy on Friday evening of this week, in behalf of the desk fund. It will be a charming affair. Lovely girls—radiant, tender, amiable! Seductive and bewitching music! Greenville Reception.

We have to thank our beloved little friend and neighbor, Miss Annie Addison, daughter of John L. Addison, Esq., for an invitation to attend a Reception by the Presidents of the Greenville Female College and Furman University in honor of the Graduating Classes. This reception is to be held at the residence of the President of Furman University, on Tuesday evening, June 10th, from 8.30 to 11.30.

The Misses Lewis.

Miss Helen Morris Lewis and Miss Lela Lewis—the delight of our whole community—are spending the month of June in our town. In Edgfield bones and hearts, "Sallie Lewis" has long been a beloved household word. Miss Helen Morris Lewis is one of the most brilliantly endowed women of the present day, or of any land. And apart from her rare intellectual gifts, she has beauty, grace and irresistible magnetism.

The Johnston Commencement.

The exercises of the Johnston High School, perhaps the most prominent institution of learning in our County, will close on Wednesday and Thursday, June 17th and 18th. There will be speeches by the boys, recitations by the girls, composition by the young ladies, and music and calisthenics by the whole school. On Thursday at 11 o'clock A. M. Col. Coward, State Superintendent of Education, and others, will deliver addresses on educational subjects. This occasion promises to be one of very great interest, and we are much obliged to Prof. Brown for an invitation to be present.

Coleman Academy.

An Edgfield school, of whose management and prosperity we often hear pleasant accounts, is Coleman Academy, near Higgins' Ferry, presided over by Miss Annie M. Floyd, a young lady who, aside from her accomplishments and experience, has an unusual gift in arousing and sustaining the ambition of her pupils. The exercises of Coleman Academy will close in July, with an exhibition, at which we hope to be present.

Ridge Spring and Johnston.

Bro. G. F. Williams writes us, says the Bayonet Courier, that there is an outcropping of considerable interest in his congregation at Ridge Spring, and then he tells us about the great work of grace at Johnston: "Bro. W. T. Hundley is having the finest revival ever witnessed in Johnston. He baptized fourteen yesterday, among them mature men and women, and people of much influence in society. Bro. T. M. Galphin, of Orangeburg, has been doing the preaching. His preaching is said to be of the very finest kind. His meetings are to continue this week. Bro. Hundley seems to be on the very top round of the ladder of praise and gratitude for the blessing the Lord has conferred on his church and the community."

Casualty.

A beautiful little girl, scarcely more than a year old, the youngest child of Dr. Seth Butler, fell from a piazza on Friday last, and broke her arm below the elbow. This was hapless for such a tiny thing, but nevertheless the fractured limb is doing admirably, and the little thing, under watchful and devoted care, has seemed to suffer but little.

Strange Relic of a Famous Hail Storm.

Mr. John H. Simons yesterday sent to the office of the News and Courier an ounce and a half filled with water from a single hail stone that fell here during the terrible storm of June 5, 1880. The hail has been hermetically sealed for the last forty-five years. The water is comparatively clear, though of a brownish tint, and it is a brown spongy looking substance very much resembling an ordinary sized tadpole. The bottle was shown to one of the leading chemists of the city who gave it as his opinion that it contained a large amount of unusual mineral matter. Several scientific gentlemen stated that it would be a great curiosity to have the bottle opened and the water analyzed, but in the absence of Mr. Simons, who had not given his consent to such a proceeding, this of course could not be done. Some of the gentlemen referred to said that the water, as soon as the cork would be removed, would become offensively putrid, and probably turn as black as ink. —News and Courier.

A gentleman who met ex-President Arthur at Fortress Monroe during his recent visit to that place, says that he was apparently as unhappy a man during his visit as could have been found. He seemed to be interested in no one or anything, avoided society and was even indifferent to his meals. The belief that he was in poorer health than he would admit was forced upon several persons who knew him. The National Republican says: "A prominent physician who has just returned from New York is quoted as saying that ex-President Arthur is suffering from Bright's disease. Mr. Arthur's visit to Fortress Monroe was not for material troubles, says the physician, but was to obtain relief from kidney troubles, with which he has been suffering for over a year. Mr. Arthur, he says, is looking badly, and seems to be suffering intensely. Mr. Arthur is preparing for a sea voyage."

Yankee Schoolmarm.

A Disgusting Scene at McNeill's Kissing Negroes.

From the Hampton Guardian.

Last Friday morning Augusta-bound train pulled up to the depot at McNeill's on time, and the passengers and those of the citizens congregated there for business witnessed a sight that either froze them with astonishment or made them very sick at their stomachs. As we are informed, the two Massachusetts schoolmarmes were at the station to board the train, having determined to go "North" to spend their summer vacation. The platform was black and redolent with negro men, women and children, the latter composing the scholars of the institution presided over by these schoolmarmes. The hour of parting having arrived, the good-byes to the adults were most affectionately said as the hearty hand-shaking went round, and sorrowful adieus were bid den. So far the scene was interesting, but when the teachers reached the scholars the exhibition became nauseating to those witnessing it. The schoolmarmes began to kiss the little negroes with a relish, and for a short time the business like "smack! smack! smack!" of osculation went on, until the ruby lips of the white instructors had sipped the nectar from the capacious mouths of every blessed little African on the platform and bestowed a number of "buses" on the shining black faces of negro women. The "foot" of the steam whistle resounded above the kissing, then, the females stepped on board the train, and the train moved off. If it was the intention of these females to disgust the passengers and citizens by their spectacle, they succeeded. Such sights are new to people in South Carolina, and they are not disposed to endorse, aid or abet the performers. The business of teaching negroes is not a very creditable one for the ladies to engage in, yet it may not be repulsive to a class of people who have been taught that the negro is superior to the white, and who carry their puritanical fanaticism to extremes for the purpose of irritating self-respecting citizens of communities in which the schools are located. These female teachers are, respectively, aged about 19 and 22 years. The names of one is Miss Carrie E. Warren, of Newton, Mass., and the other Miss Clara Belle Simonds. They are employed by some benevolent society in the North, and no doubt regard themselves as missionaries in a benighted land; but, for the sake of decency and good order, they should not give any more public exhibitions of their love for the negro or practical lessons in social equality. We do not think the society which employs them will approve of this method of enlightening the blacks, and we are not quite prepared to believe, even after the disgusting performance at McNeill's station, that the people of Massachusetts, as a whole, are so fond of the Southern black as these "down east" schoolmarmes seem to be. If so, the most fervently beseech the good Lord to keep from among us the contaminating presence, and if the do migrate Southward, only let a few come at a time, that we may be enabled to massacre them without trouble. Bring out the bloody shirt! Arouse ye Celts and Saxons! To civilization of the white race is a peril; the teaching of fanatical, social equality, Praje-God-Barabones, is bearing fruit in

A Strange Case.

Sacrificing One of the Family to Money for the Rest.

Major James Geddes, the resident Superintendent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, finished unearthing a case yesterday that turned out to be one of the coolest and most audacious attempts ever made to damage from a railroad company. After the engineer of a passenger train reported to Major Geddes Friday night that he had nearly over a colored boy near the tunnel in the Decatur division of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad on that day, who seemed desirous of committing suicide, the Superintendent retired the matter to Mr. F. Lester, the station agent of Lester Station, which is near the tunnel. Major Geddes, who was returned last night with the following indorsement by Mr. Lester: "There is a negro living near the mouth of the tunnel who has about ten children. Yesterday they agreed that one of the number should at down on the track and be killed by passenger train No. 2, so that the mother could recover from the railroad company money as damage with which to raise the balance of the family. One of the children agreed to do this, and went down the track and consented to die got on the track and sat there until the passenger train came along to within about ten feet, when the child became frightened, and jumped off. The mother whipped the child severely, although it was in telling her that she was going to die for her benefit." —Nashville Union.

What a Mississippi Pilot Says.

Capt. D. M. Riggs, who is well known at New Orleans and along the Mississippi river, says, "I have been suffering from dyspepsia for the past five years, and from broken rest, by severe pains in the bowels and kidneys. I tried every medicine, but without success. At last I used a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters, which proved a perfect success in my case." It cures all liver, kidney and malarial diseases.

That we have proved so often by actual demonstration that we have hundreds—nay, thousands—who have tested for themselves.
